"A BREATH OF THE CAROLINA LOW COUNTRY"

Mr. Harold S. Reeves, Lecturer

Mr. Reeves, a native of Charleston, has gained a wide reputation as both scholar and raconteur in the picturesque Gullah dialect of coastal South Carolina and Georgia. His discourse presents what is known of the origin of this Negro dialect, together with numerous charming stories and anecdotes portraying the humor and pathos of the folk who have spoken and still speak this dying patois.

FRIDAY, APRIL 10—— 8:30 P. M.
Columbia College Auditorium
